YOU ARE NOT ALONE

Dear Mama (or Papa),

I am so deeply sorry for your loss. The baby you carried, no matter how briefly, was real. Your love was real. Your grief is real.

You may have heard:

'At least you know you can get pregnant.'

'It was not meant to be.'

'You can always try again.'

'At least it was early.'

None of those words help. None of them honor what you lost. What you lost was a PERSON. A future. A hope. A part of yourself.

This journal is your safe space. There are no right or wrong answers. There is no timeline for grief. There is no 'getting over it' - there is only learning to carry it.

You may use this journal every day, or you may pick it up only when the waves of grief feel too heavy to carry alone.

Your baby existed. Your baby mattered. Your baby is still loved.

With compassion and understanding,
Daniel Tesfamariam

MY HEALING AFFIRMATIONS

Read these when you need them. Add your own at the bottom.

- ~ My grief is proof of my love.
- ~ I am allowed to feel whatever I feel.
- ~ My baby was real and my baby mattered.
- ~ I am not broken. I am healing.
- ~ There is no timeline for grief.
- ~ I can miss my baby and still live my life.
- ~ I am stronger than I know.
- ~ It is okay to laugh again. Joy does not erase love.
- ~ My body did its best. This was not my fault.
- ~ I will carry my baby in my heart forever.
- ~ I am allowed to say my baby's name.
- ~ I can be sad and hopeful at the same time.
- ~ Asking for help is brave, not weak.
- ~ I will get through this moment. And the next one.
- ~ My baby's life, however brief, changed me forever.

MY OWN AFFIRMATIONS:

Write a letter to yourself one year from now.

What do you hope you will know, feel, or have accomplished?

Dear Future Me,

With love,

Me (today's date: __/__/__)
